

"Editor The Star: I have read with considerable interest and appreciation your editorial of July 8th concerning water and the problem of controlling and conserving it, particularly here in the South-west.

I was particularly interested in your observation of the Millwood Dam & Reservoir project. You undoubtedly know, Mr. Washburn, that the Millwood Dam was authorized by the 20th Congress in 1946, along with five other reservoirs, for the purpose of controlling floods in the Red River Basin. The Millwood Reservoir immediately became a controversial project and the project was strongly opposed by the Dierks Lumber and Coal Company of Kansas City, who own a large acreage in the Little River Basin. It was claimed by the Dierks Company that the building of the Dam and the Reservoir would inundate and destroy so much of their timber holdings that their processing mills in Dierks, Broken Bow, and other locations, would be forced to close, which frightened the people of these communities and, quite naturally, they, too, opposed the project. In 1948, a Public Hearing was held in Ashdown, Arkansas, at which time the Corps of Engineers received testimony, both pro and con, on the project with the result in 1950 the downstream interests effected a compromise with the upstream interests for the purpose of "once and for all" determining whether or not a series of small dams on the head waters of the tributaries to Little River could be economically justified in lieu of the large downstream reservoir at Millwood.

This hearing and compromise was reached in the Senate Appropriations Committee Hearing and, through the efforts of Senator McClellan, $200,000 was added to the Bill to enable the Corps of Engineers to review and restudy the project on the condition that the findings of the Corps of Engineers would be final and would be accepted by both parties. Accordingly, the Corps of Engineers reviewed and restudied the project and in 1951 reported their findings back to the interested parties, which in fact were that the six upstream reservoirs were not economically justified in that they would cost three times the amount of the single reservoir and, in addition, would control only about 60 percent of the waters from the Little River Watershed.

At the same time all this was going on, our Association, because of the controversy, devoted its entire time and effort to securing funds for the Texarkana Dam & Reservoir on the Sulphur River, with the result that this reservoir was put under construction in 1948 at an estimated cost of $3,000,000 and, with appropriations received this year, will be completed in early Spring of next year. The Texarkana Reservoir, although a flood control project, also includes municipal water supplies for both Texarkana Cities for their use in the years to come.

At the same time the controversy of the Millwood Reservoir was going on, we began to plan the next reservoir, which is the Ferrell's Bridge Reservoir, 18 miles above Jefferson, Texas, on the Cypress River. This reservoir was also authorized as a flood control project, but, because of the critical shortage of municipal and industrial water supply in the vicinity of the Lone Star Steel Company and surrounding cities, a conservation storage of 250,000 acre feet for municipal and industrial supplies was incorporated into the design of the project. Funds to initiate construction of this project were requested in appropriation hearings last year before the Congress and we are very optimistic that the Congress will make available funds to initiate construction in the 1954-55 Fiscal Year.

I am relating all this, Mr. Washburn, to show that while the Millwood project has been involved in controversy created by selfish interests your section has suffered both damages from floods and delay in getting underway on the construction of a project which is not only highly desirable but will provide your section of Arkansas with adequate municipal, industrial and irrigation waters for the years to come.

I might add, Mr. Washburn, that over two months ago, while visiting with Governor Cherry, he wrote the Office of the Chief of Engineers in Washington urging that the Millwood project be programmed for construction at the earliest possible moment and that adequate supply in municipal, industrial and related water uses be incorporated into its design.

Curbs No Aid on Farm Issue, Says Benson

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today the best-trained professional people in agriculture agree that present farm programs are headed for serious trouble.

He said he had found in a personal survey these people believe the programs need major overhauling.

Benson said he had written 60 farm leaders at agricultural colleges, directors of research institutions and to other leaders in farming affairs, without regard to political affiliations, asking their views on farm programs, particularly government price supports.

Responses—which the secretary estimated involved views of perhaps 500 individuals—generally agreed, he said, that future farm programs should be tailored to the needs of each specific product rather than attempt to force all commodities into the same kind of program.

Benson gave a brief outline of the results of his survey in a speech prepared for a meeting sponsored by the Agricultural Council of California, the California Farm Bureau Federation, the California State Chamber of Commerce and the California State Board of Agriculture.

"With the exception of tobacco and possibly cotton," Benson said, "it was generally thought that restricted production was not the answer."

Benson said the responses generally but not unanimously preferred flexible farm price supports over the present system of rigid

Destroyer Rams a School of Whales

TOKYO (AP)—The Navy today said the U. S. destroyer Blue bumped into two or three whales while en route to a Pacific island.

George Wagner of Memphis, Mo., said:

"When we got back to the spot where we hit the whale we found a large red stain in the ocean with two whales thrashing around. We must have hit a whole school of whales."

The destroyer was not damaged.

Three-Fourths of World Is Water, But That's Little Comfort to Oklahoma City

By LLOYD WOLFE
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Three-fourths of the earth's surface is water. You'd think there would be enough to go around.

But Oklahoma City, locked in the throes of a drought-bred water shortage with no solution in sight, has become a "worried, puzzled" community.

Its population of about 250,000, the 45th largest city in the nation, has cut its water usage about one-third—but that's not enough. Even with the reduction, the supply on hand in the city's two lakes is not expected to last past mid-November. Normal rainfall isn't expected to bolster the supply appreciably.

The water shortage hurts! The still-to-be-developed Southwest is looking for new industries. A plentiful water supply is a big lure. But here, the cloudless skies have snapped the bait off the hook.

In some Southwestern cities, where supplies have run dry, water is being trucked in.

William Morgan Cain, president of the city Chamber of Commerce, said dryly:

"Industries that would ordinarily be interested in Oklahoma City have just stopped and are waiting to see how this thing turns out. A lot of them, with the situation as it is, don't even look."

Generally, it has been bad for business in the city. People get worried and puzzled.

Taxes, too, take a beating. Mayor Allen Street pointed out normally the city collects $1,700,000 annually in water taxes. With consumption curtailed "about 20 per cent of that is lost."

Tulsa, in the northeast part of the state, is a virtual oasis. Big government dams have assured it of all the water it can use now and in the foreseeable future.

Oklahoma City fathers, who constructed a new lake a little over a decade ago thinking it would answer the city's water problem for a century, aren't waiting for Mother Nature's help.

A two million dollar bond issue has been passed to dig emergency wells.

Professional cloud seeders have been consulted and Mayor Street says they probably will be employed to produce rain along the lake's narrow watershed.

Excess Profits Tax Bill Goes to President

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration could count its biggest legislative triumph of the congressional session so far today in passage of the bill extending the excess profits tax six months.

Senate approval by vote 69-21 late yesterday sent the embattled measure to the President's desk for signature into law.

Senate leaders succeed in beating down any amendment which would have sent the bill back to the House, where it was involved in a long bitter row that split Republican ranks.

The extension, from last June 30 to Dec. 31, is estimated to bring in about 800 millions of additional revenue. But the administration had to give a flat commitment, announced on the Senate floor, not to seek another extension.

The only amendment offered in the Senate was beaten 52-34. It would have exempted from the tax any business with net income of less than $100,000 a year. The present limit is $25,000.

New Shakeup Hits Soviet Ukraine

BERLIN (AP)—The Communists announced a shakeup in the Soviet Ukraine today in the mushrooming purge of security and justice officials in the U. S. S. R. and in restive East Germany.

In the third Communist shakeup in the last two days, Moscow radio announced the appointment of Timofiy A. Strokach as interior minister of the Ukrainian republic second biggest of the 16 in the Soviet Union and long reported to be a hotbed of nationalist resentment against Kremlin dictates.

Last night East Germany's puppet government announced it had purged Max Fechner, minister of justice, as "an enemy of the republic." This is a charge punishable by death. In Fechner's place the Reds named "Red" Hilde Benjamin, a woman jurist with a reputation for dealing mercilessly with crimes against the Red regime.

The purge follows the booting of Lavrenty P. Beria, the former Soviet police boss, and apparently results from that act. The officials affected are those dealing with law enforcement or internal security—the task of keeping the people in line.

The ousting of Fechner, a Sovietist turned Communist, a few years ago, came 12 hours after Moscow radio had announced the purging of one of Beria's top lieutenants in the Soviet republic of Georgia. He was Minister of State Security Vladimir G. Dakanov.

The broadcast said he was expelled from the party. Presumably he also lost his government job.

The Soviet Ukraine has always been a headache for the men in the driver's seat in Moscow. It is a rich grain-producing area and vital to the Soviet economy. When Hitler's troops overran the Ukraine in the last war many Ukrainians reportedly welcomed them at first as deliverers from Communist tyranny.

The first blow in what appeared to be the beginning of the anticipated East German purge did not strike either of the two most hated Communists in the regime, Walter Ulbricht, deputy premier and party secretary general, and State Security Minister Wilhelm Zaisser.

Reds Given 48 Hours to Say Yes or No

By EARNEST HOBERECHT
SEOUL, Korea, Friday, (UP)—The United Nations command has given the Communists 48 hours in which to give a "yes" or "no" answer to a new proposal designed to break a truce deadlock, it was reported today.

A messenger sprinted from a helicopter to the truce hut at Panmunjom yesterday. He delivered a teletyped message from Tokyo, Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, the chief allied negotiator.

It was announced soon afterward that there would be a 48 hour recess in the truce talks, with the next meeting to start at 2 p. m. Saturday (1 a. m. Saturday EDT).

It was indicated that the recess was agreed on so that the Communists could study a new proposal concerning the promise of South Korean President Syngman Rhee to abide by an armistice.

The U. N. command, it was reported, told the Reds it wanted a showdown and that they had until Saturday to come up with a definite answer. This answer might tell whether the truce talks are to continue, with some hope of an early armistice, or whether the U. N. command will call an indefinite recess.

Harrison had walked out on the Communist at Wednesday's meeting.

Both Communist and U. N. sources confirmed the Wednesday walkout which gave the first hint that the U. N. was approaching the point of delivering an ultimatum to the Reds to accept Rhee's promise to abide by a truce or end the talks.

Gen. Mark W. Clark, U. N. Supreme Commander, criticized the Communists for breaking the secrecy agreement in broadcasting.

Chicago Girl U. S. Choice for Miss Universe

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A beautifully proportioned blonde from Chicago, newly crowned Miss United States, faces the prettiest girls from 25 other lands tonight in the preliminaries of the Miss Universe contest.

Myrna Rae Hansen, 18, was a standout in the finals of the Miss United States competition, but the going promises to be keener tonight.

Miss Hansen, selected as Miss Illinois after winning a Chicago press photographers' contest, took 59 out of 60 points on the judges' final ballot last night.

Warm brown eyes and an even, white smile proved telling assets for Miss Hansen, who is of Danish-German descent. No less important is the way her 125 pounds are mounted on a 5-foot, 7-inch frame; 3-inch bust, 25-inch waist and 35-inch hips.

She shed just a tear or two and her lips quivered as a gold and silver crown was placed on her head by Ruth Hampton, movie starlet and herself a contestant from New Jersey in 1952.

Miss Hansen also will receive a film contract from Universal-International Studio and a British sports car.

Runner-up to Miss United States was personable, brunette Mary Griffin of Myrtle Beach, S. C., Mrs. Doris Edwards of Birmingham, Ala., was third; Nancy Potraborg, Seattle, Wash., fourth; and Shauna Wood, Salt Lake City, Utah, fifth. All received trophies.

Miss Potraborg survived the near loss of her slip onstage to make the finals. She clutched it, rushed out to make repairs and then returned to receive loud bursts of applause.

His Friends May Be No Good But Hubby Doesn't Like to Be Told Truth All at Once

(Editor's Note — Every June bride has the task of pruning her husband's old garden of friends. But how? In the following article, third in a series of four, a panel of veteran husbands tells any bride how to meet this marital problem safely.)

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—What is the biggest mistake June brides may be making today in the post-honeymoon adjustment that takes place in all marriages?

A panel of veteran husbands I consulted thought that one of the commonest marital errors by young wives was this:

"They try to get a husband to drop all his old friends, because they don't want to have to share their lover with anybody."

The all-male panel agreed it was unwise to expect any wife to have to put up with all her husband's old buddies, as they probably include some who are "as big a bum as he used to be before he was wed and married her." But they said it was a situation that was better corrected through time and tact, rather than direct addition.

"Any young wife is going to have this problem, unless she married a hermit," said one. "The thing to do is to weed out his friends gradually and gracefully. If she just waits, she will find his more objectionable friends will drift away."

Embarrassing, Says Girl Who Stowed Away on U. S. Cruiser With All Its 1,300 Sailors

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UP)—A girl who cropped her hair, impersonated a sailor and stowed away aboard a U. S. battle cruiser that went to sea for gunnery practice said today she felt embarrassed.

"Thirteen hundred sailors and me," cooed 18-year-old Joan Garrison.

The blue-eyed unemployed waitress clipped her black hair, pulled on a Navy uniform and boarded the U. S. S. Los Angeles Monday on a dare.

"I kept wandering around trying to look nonchalant," she said, "sailors were cycling each other suspiciously. But the boys were good to me, feeding me bananas and milk all the time."

U. S. Commissioner Howard V. Calverley, who ordered her held on charges of illegally wearing a military uniform and set bail at $1,000 declared:

"This is a most peculiar case—most unusual."

Miss Garrison said she and a group of friends decided Sunday night as a gag to see if she could pass for a sailor and board the ship.

She said a sailor friend, "who gets crazy ideas," and other Navy men coaxed her on how to get aboard the cruiser and gave her a liberty card.

At 4:30 a.m. Monday she boarded the vessel and a few hours later, the cruiser, just back from Korean waters, pulled out to sea.

But by that time, rumor had spread that a woman was aboard and a search was started.

Meanwhile, the ship's batteries began gunnery practice.

Tearfully, Miss Garrison, of Long Beach, recalled she "was scared to death. Those guns made such an awful noise."

"I was terrified. I saw a door with a sign 'Danger. High voltage. Do not enter.' So I entered."

The searchers finally found her and she was placed in the brig while the ship's radio informed shore stations of the stowaway.

The cruiser returned to port immediately, while hundreds of sailors went to the brig for a look at the shapely stowaway, who by this time had exchanged her dress blue uniform for dungarees and T-shirt.

"It seemed like every sailor came down to look at me. They didn't

Adonis Out of Prison, Faces Perjury Count

TRENTON, N.J., (UP)—Rackets boss Joe Adonis posted bail bond on federal perjury charges today within an hour after his release from state prison, where he served 28 months for running million-dollar dice games in New Jersey.

State officials from Bergen County were awaiting to escort the one-time "Mr. Big" of the underworld gamblers to Hackensack for another arraignment, this time as a material witness in a sensational "production" payoff racket.

Adonis, walking with a jauntier step and wise-cracking with reporters, was accompanied by three criminal lawyers as he entered U. S. Commissioner Clifford R. Moore's chambers handcuffed to deputy U. S. Marshall Alfonso Accor-

The gangster's attorneys posted $5,000 bail on the perjury indictment. He will be tried in the federal district court at Washington July 23 on charges of lying to a Senate Crime Investigating Committee three years ago.

Lt. Col. Ernest L. McDaniel, assistant adjutant general, said the new unit will start operations soon after Aug. 1.

McDaniel said this is the third unit of the 875th in the state. Headquarters Company is at Pine Bluff and Company A is at Fort Smith. He described the purpose of the battalion as building and maintaining attack airstrips.

McDaniel said other units in the state have been authorized to reach their maximum strength. There are units at Fayetteville, Bentonville, Rogers, Berryville, Harrison, Fort Smith, Paris, Ozark, Mena, Bonerville and Piggott.

Actress Slain, Killer Turns Gun on Self

NEW YORK (UP)—A beautiful understudy to a top Broadway musical role was murdered today by a young salesman who confessed in a suicide note found beside his body more than 40 blocks away.

Police found the nude body of Florence Forsberg, a Canadian-born soprano, identified as a member of the chorus of the hit show "Wonderful Town" and understudy to Edith Adams' "Sister Elton" to Rosalind Wiseman's starring role.

She was found lying on the floor of her fashionable apartment, her clothing piled on her bloodgeoned head. Police were led to the body in a grimy bizarre fashion.

They found a suicide note beside the body of Lester Johnson, 25, a chocolate company salesman who killed himself with a rifle blast in the apartment he shared with his mother.

The note read: "I killed or contributed to the death of an actress named Flo at 34 West 80th Street."

Miss Forsberg's body was found lying between two beds in the apartment off Central Park which she occupied with two other girls. She had been stabbed repeatedly in the back and stomach. Her regular violin had been cut.

The other occupants of the apartment, Victoria Crandall and Moreland Korkamp, were said to be a two piano team. They were not immediately located by police.

Johnson killed himself in the bedroom of his mother's apartment about 7:15 a. m., firing a bullet through his heart with an explosion which brought his mother and a sister running to his room.

The suicide note was found beside his body.

Mrs. Marguerite Johnson told police her son and the actress had been friends for sometime.

A spokesman for the "Wonderful Town" management said Miss Forsberg had given no indication of personal troubles and had been "smiling and gay" when she appeared at the theater yesterday, as she had been ever since she joined the show.

Johnson's employers said he had reported for work regularly and had given no indication of pressing personal problems.

Waste Seen in Present Style Surplus Sales

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators say the United States may lose "an unprecise amount of money" unless an effective plan is developed for disposing of billions of dollars worth of surplus military equipment.

A House operations subcommittee today said Secretary of Defense Wilson yesterday to prepare immediately a concrete program.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Rulifson (R-N.Y.), said that through obsolescence alone, the vast supplies of equipment now on hand will create "surpluses amounting to hundreds of millions and possibly billions of dollars within the next few years."

It said in a report to the house that nearly eight billion dollars worth of goods is now considered surplus.

Education Dept. to Be Revamped

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—State Education Commissioner Arch Ford today said he is studying plans to re-organize the state education department in line with a survey made last year.

Ford said he hopes to have the plans ready for the September meeting of the state board of education. Meanwhile, an advisory committee assisting with the organizational studies has scheduled a meeting July 28-29 to discuss the problem.

Dr. H. H. Alves, an administrative expert from the University of Texas, and Dr. A. D. Albright of Peabody College are expected to make recommendations at the meeting.

Bee Wrecks Load of 4 New Autos

WASHINGTON, Ind. (AP)—A bee was blamed for the loss of four new automobiles and an auto transport truck yesterday.

Clifford Poits of Madison, Ill., said a bee flew into the cab of his truck and caused him to lose control. The truck carrying four new cars overturned, and all the cars and truck were destroyed by fire. Poits suffered minor injuries.

NEW YORK STOCKS
NEW YORK, N.Y. — The stock market held steady today in extreme quiet trading.
 Alesandro, however, stood out on the upside with gains that at times ran to nearly 2 points in the case of Douglas. The remainder of the list showed gains and losses of minor fractions with the upside slightly more popular.
 Major divisions showing unchanged to higher prices included railroads, utilities, steel, motors, radio-television, motion picture concerns, and the aircrafts. Other were narrowly mixed or slightly lower.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS
CHICAGO, Ill. — Grain trends were highly scrambled on the Board of Trade today.
 Wheat had an easier undertone
 most of the day on hedging pressure, coupled with only routine support from milling and export interests. Oats were weak.
 Warm, dry weather in the Midwest brought a little buying into corn and soybeans, both of which showed moderate gains.

Telephone Rate Hearing Is Recessed

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Hearing on Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's application for an Arkansas rate increase was recessed late yesterday until July 23 after a one-day resumption before the Public Service Commission.

The next installment will be devoted to additional testimony by witnesses for Southwestern Bell which is seeking to make permanent a 2.35 million dollar a year increase now being collected under bond and to get approval for a 1.5 million dollar increase for the future.

Bell presented its direct testimony when the intermittent hearing opened in April. Testimony to be given later this month will be in attempted refutation of opposing testimony that Bell does not need an increase or in any case not as large an increase as it is asking.

Yesterday's hearing was for cross examination of representatives of Arthur Andersen and Company, Chicago accounting firm, which was engaged by the Commission to make an independent survey in connection with Southwestern Bell's request.

Attorneys for cities opposing the proposed increase brought out that S. Loyd Nemeyer of the Andersen firm had not consulted their witnesses or examined data they had assembled.

Nemeyer said he had not "been

South Wants Cotton Setup Unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southerners pleaded today before the House Agriculture Committee for retention of the present law in setting state cotton acreage quotas for 1954—but for a minimum of 22 1/2 million acres.

They are opposed to the compromise plan proposed by the American Farm Bureau Federation and backed by such western states as Arizona and California.

Quotas are expected to be imposed for next year because of a growing supply of cotton.

Southern spokesmen contend cotton growing has been a decades-old business in the South and is one of the backbones of the region's economy.

They claim that California and Arizona in recent years have increased their cotton plantings and should be forced to take larger acreage cuts if quotas are imposed.

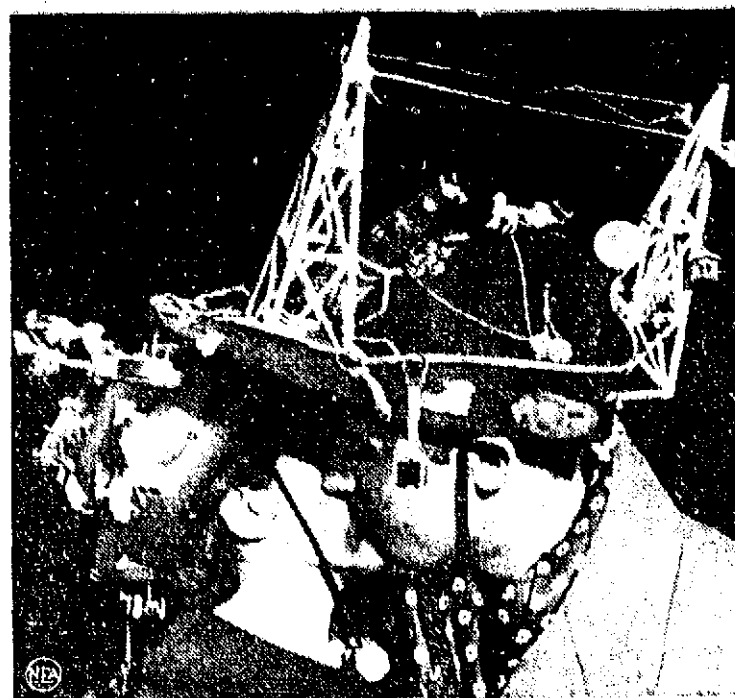

The Farm Bureau proposes that the national allotment for 1954 be set at 21 1/2 million acres, plus some 500,000 acres as adjustments to prevent any western states from receiving a cut of more than 27 1/2 per cent. No Southern state would be cut more than 22 1/2 per cent.

Under present law, by using a 5-year base period in arriving at quotas to consult with the cities' representatives and PSC Chairman Lewis Robinson said the witness was "under no obligation" to seek out the protesters.

The cities' attorneys obviously were surprised when Nemeyer testified on cross examination several weeks ago that Southwestern three million dollars above its former rates—those in effect before the bonded increase was made—on a rate base of some 40 million dollars.

Questioning of Nemeyer developed that Andersen and Company was charging $17,500 for its services in the rate case.

DOROTHY DIX

Embittered Mother

Dear Miss Dix: A recent correspondent wrote you that "Children are more a burden than enjoyment." She is 100 per cent right. All one has to do is look around and see the torture, heartbreak and tears caused by children, and realize the truth of her statement. Experience is the best teacher, but also the most expensive. I regret more than anything in all the world, having a child as a millstone around my neck the balance of my life. M. E. B.

Regrettable and Tragical
Answer: What a sad, embittered woman you are. The existence of your child isn't the whole trouble; though you give no explanation for your feeling or of the sad circumstances that have brought you to this tragic belief, it almost certainly goes back to a time before the birth of your child.

No one can possibly deny that there are heartaches and tears wound up in the rearing of a child, but can you name any other way of life that is different? No matter what path one chooses, thorns will be few scattered among the roses. Few indeed are the parents who look back on the years spent raising a family as having been wasted. No effort in the world is as rewarding, since no other effort holds the full measure of creation that comes with rearing a child. The architect may receive columns of praise for his beautiful building, the author's best-seller may be acclaimed by critics, but the sacrifices involved in raising a family bring the blessing of God. Fortunately, children need no press agents; most folks love them, yearn to have them, and are more than willing to take the trouble to bring them up properly. It's regrettable and tragic that the priceless gift of a child should have been given to one who doesn't appreciate it. It is denied to many couples who would welcome every sacrifice a baby entails.

You will find few listeners to your misanthropic creed!

Dear Miss Dix: I am very much to love with a wonderful girl and would like to marry her. This, however, is impossible because her parents don't want her to marry until she finishes high school, which will be in two years. If we elope her parents will turn against me. What do you advise us to do?

Answer: Since the young lady is 16 at most, and you probably are not much older, waiting in accordance with her parents' wishes is the best course.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been going steady with a boy for six months, and recently learned that he is seeing one of his old girl friends. What shall I do?

Answer: Since going steady implies that dating is with one person only, your friend is violating his part of the understanding. His defection leaves you free to follow suit. Date other boys, and see what reaction you get.

Cop Rescues Boy Caught in Cliff

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Alvin McCully, playing with some friends in a park yesterday, saw a large black hole in a rock cliff 15 feet above ground level, clambered up and poked his head inside.

The hole was smaller than it had looked. Alvin couldn't pull his head back out.

His chums tugged and pulled. They called police and Patrolman William Holcherson arrived to do some pulling and tugging too. Alvin stayed stuck.

Finally Holcherson got a screw-driver and hammer plus a towel to wrap Alvin's head in. After 25 minutes in the dark, Alvin was chipped free, unhurt.

Little Rock Knocks Off Memphis 9-8

By MERCER BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

A lot can happen between the second out and the third in a baseball game. Just look at the Memphis-Little Rock game last night.

Little Rock won a battle of home runs—9-8, and all 17 of the runs were scored after the second out. The victory pulled the Travelers to within two games of the first division.

Chuck King blasted the first bases loaded homer of the year at Travelers Field, and his Little Rock mate Frank Bolling and Hal Simpson also chipped in with a circuit smash apiece. Ralph Rowe knocked one out of the park with two mates on for Memphis.

Bolling and Memphis' Sammy Meeks and Bill Wilson banged out doubles, Wilson's coming with the bases loaded and driving in three runs. Bolling's double scored Dave Jaska with what turned out to be the winning run.

The Trays' 2-1 series edge over Memphis wound up the best home stand of the year for Little Rock—two out of nine. And it was Little Rock's eighth victory over the Chiefs in 10 games.

Both Nashville and Atlanta won last night, leaving the Vols two and a half games ahead of the Crackerjacks. Nashville found the range after two frustrating nights and walloped Chattanooga, 13-1. Atlanta won its fifth straight with a 4-1 verdict over Birmingham. New Orleans beat last-place Mobile 6-2.

After being held to six hits in each of the last two games, the Vols pounded two Lookout pitchers for two home runs, four double and 10 singles for their lopsided victory. Harvey Gentry and Bob Lemon contributed the homers, and Gentry went four-for-five for the night.

Only Looks Bald

The bald eagle is not actually bald. After it is several years old, the feathers of the head become shaggy white, giving a bald appearance.

IT'S ONLY A CRATE, BUT IT'S FUNCTIONAL—Magistrate D. C. The county court refused to pay the furniture bill because it wasn't consulted on the $217 purchase.

Nelson Trails 2 Strokes at Start of Final

By CARL BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

TEXARKANA (AP)—Favorite Byron Nelson trailed a red-hot home-state amateur by two strokes heading into the final 18 holes of the Arkansas Open Golf Tournament here today.

Chunky Paul Collum of El Dorado shaved five strokes off par with a 69 yesterday to lead the pack through the first half of the two-day meet over the treacherous 6,520-yard Texarkana Country Club course.

Nelson, who lost two badly needed strokes with an out of bounds fairway wood on the seventh hole, was tied for second at 70 with pros Johnny Whitten of Little Rock and Curtis Collier of Fort Smith. Also still in the running at 72 were Gib Sellers of Hot Springs—who was to play a threesome with Nelson and Collum today—and three others.

The tournament had a notable casualty as defending champion Barney Osment, Jonesboro amateur, scored to a 13 over par 86 and withdrew.

It was Collum's day. The burr-headed old salesman was two under par through 14 holes with what he called "good scrambling." A 20-foot putt gave him a birdie on No. 15 and he was a stroke under par on each of the next two holes.

While Collum, Nelson and Sellers were in the featured group teeing off at 1 p. m. today, Collier and Whitten played together in the next bunch along with Al Hoffman, Texarkana amateur who had a 72 in the first round.

The low pro will pocket $300 of the $200 total prize money. Second place is worth $175. Amateurs will win golf equipment and prizes.

Harrison's walkout before he went to the front to talk with Allied generals.

"The Communists violated the executive nature of the session, but I'm not going to do like they do," Clark said.

Lt. Col. Milton Herr, official U. N. spokesman at Panmunjom, refused to disclose which side called the recess, but all indications pointed to Harrison.

Harrison kept the Communists waiting outside the truce hut for 15 minutes while he studied a teletyped message from Tokyo, delivered to him by helicopter.

The helicopter whirled into the area, landed and a messenger sprinted to Harrison's tent with the mysterious note.

While Harrison was reading, North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief Red negotiator, chain-smoked cigars outside the hut.

The Communists opened the Thursday session with a two-minute statement, then the two sides exchanged comments and Harrison presumably proposed the recess after Nam had spoken briefly.

Following the U. N.'s Wednesday walkout, an informed American source said Harrison would tell the Communists to "quit stalling" at the Thursday meeting.

"I would recommend it to some of my best friends," Adonis said. The big shot racketeer, fully aware of the many federal and local indictments pending against him, refused to discuss his future.

"All I can say is that I am anxious to see my children," he said.

Adonis was charged in a two-count indictment handed up by a federal grand jury in Washington April 24 with lying twice in testimony before the now-defunct Senate Crime Investigating Committee in December, 1950.

British Drop Blockade of Suez Zone

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—The British announced today they were lifting immediately restrictions on road and rail traffic they placed around the Suez Canal zone town of Ismailia Monday.

The British had sent up road blocks and started checking all traffic in and out of the mid-Suez center. They charged that British airman, missing since last Thursday, had been abducted and at least one Egyptian officer was implicated. The Egyptians denied any part in his disappearance.

The British move is expected to ease somewhat the mounting British-Egyptian tension touched off by the establishment of British manned roadblocks and check points on Monday.

While there was no word of the missing Briton, Leading Aircraftman A. V. Riden, Egyptian police did hand back another British Tommy who said he wanted to quit the Army because of financial difficulties. His name was withheld.

Maj. Salah Salem, Egyptian minister of national guidance, announced the soldier, wearing civilian clothes gave himself up to the Egyptian authorities at Ismailia and he was handed over to the British military authorities "as these were in control of the area."

News Briefs

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The incidence of polio in Arkansas continued an upward trend with 17 new cases reported in 13 counties for the week ended July 11.

State health officials reported six paralytic cases, nine non-paralytic cases, and two cases unspecified. Two deaths were reported, one each in Ashley and Crittenden counties.

Total cases for the year to July 11 was 81 as against 57 last year. Counties reporting cases last week were Ashley, Cleveland, Crittenden, Lonoke, Polk, Sebastian, Jackson, Ouachita, Pulaski, Union, Washington, Sevier and Jefferson.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The National Labor Relations Board today ordered a union representation election held at the producers rice mill of Stuttgart, Ark.

The election will determine if the employees will be represented by the International Union of Brewery Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers (CIO), or the International Association of Machine Workers (I.A.M.).

A requested election at the Producers Rice Mill, an adjunct of the rice mill, was refused on grounds that only one employee was eligible to vote, the rest being seasonal workers.

An election at the mill was ordered by the British military authorities "as these were in control of the area."

The campaign was sparked by a resolution signed by Gov. Francis Cherry and the governors of Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas and calling for a strict control of highway speeds.

The resolution stated, in part: "Safety on our highways is as

This Dog Confused the Court Issue

CHICAGO (AP)—The collie was placed close to two contending families in a municipal court case to see toward which his affection waggled—but confused the issue yesterday by turning to lick the judge's face.

The brown dog was a friendly to Jack J. Robbins, 28, who calls him Shep, as he was to Frank Daniels, 32, who insists the name is Laddie.

Tull waggling the canny canine then licked the face of Judge Mason S. Sullivan. The judge asked the Anti-Cruelty Society to examine the dog to determine whether he fits the age and detailed descriptions given by each family. He said that will help him in deciding on ownership.

Adlai Heading Home, Future Is Uncertain

By DON WHITEHEAD
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON 15 — Adlai Stevenson is winding up his world tour and coming home later this month to a political future still fuzzy around the edges.

It is far from clear just where Stevenson will fit into the Democratic picture even though many of his party still consider him to be their leader and spokesman.

There is nothing to indicate he intends to step back into the shadows and leave the field of leadership to others. His actions haven't been those of a man who has accepted one defeat as final. Even on a world trip he has kept his name before the people at home through his writings and statements.

But it is becoming evident that the influential part of the Democratic party doesn't intend to see the 1956 presidential nomination go to Stevenson by default.

There were many Democratic leaders, particularly the old regulars, who never quite felt comfortable with Stevenson. It was not that they disliked or were opposed to him because of any particular philosophy or issue. They just never felt he was one of them.

More and more the name of Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri is cropping up as a possible claimant to the Democratic nomination in '56. The talks percolate that Symington is the man to watch in the looking for favorable position before the convention.

That convention is a long time distant measured by political mileage. But it seems safe to predict the man who wins next time will have to go out and fight for the nomination. It's doubtful there will be another draft.

Many people never quite understood Stevenson's avowed reluctance last year. Some never were convinced this reluctance was real. In Springfield, a few hours after he conceded defeat by saying he was "too old to cry and too hurt to laugh," Stevenson sat in the governor's mansion talking to a small group.

He was asked if he believed a political party should be put into the position of having to draft its presidential candidate—if this was good for the party.

He replied quickly: "Of course." He went on to say that for too many years the system had grown up which men set themselves up as leaders by announcing, "I am going to be president." Then, he added, these men proceeded to call the people on the idea they were leaders.

He argued the democratic way was for the people to choose their own leaders. The point was that the impetus should come from the people — not from someone selling himself.

At that time Stevenson also said he was not accepting the nomination. He also had accepted the responsibility of party leadership that had been President Truman's.

Coming months will give a clearer picture of Stevenson's position in the party and his chances to be the Democratic nominee.

But until this happens, it is certain politics will be livelier and considerably more fun with Stevenson back home.

away anyway, as they will find him more boring and less fun the longer he is married."

"The worst thing a bride can do is to hurry the situation — to deliberately break up all his old friendships," said a second veteran. "That will create a Chinese wall of misunderstanding between them."

"She will find she has driven her husband farther from her, not brought him closer. He will retreat to keep from being swallowed. For he will realize his wife is like a lady spider, which consumes her mate."

A third husband broke in:

"Boy, that was my first wife, all right — a lady spider with a barbed with vocal chords. She managed to shake off all my friends — but fast. I had to admire the way she did it. But after five long years of admiring her I up and shook her off, and got me a new wife."

"How's she?" someone asked.

"Oh, much better," he replied. "She says I am a homebroken by my first wife that she herself is willing to lend me a few friends to play poker with — just so she can get me out from under her feet at least one night a week. Wonderful woman!"

The other husbands nodded gravely. Then they drew up the following rules to guide any young bride in the delicate task of bringing her husband's thorny arid of friendship:

1. "Above all — go slow."

2. "Help marry off his effluent bachelor pals to your own old friends even if hearing their names because a man can't stand to hear a bum praised, even if the bum is his own brother."

3. "Praise your husband's worst friends to the skies. He will get sick even of hearing their names because a man can't stand to hear a bum praised, even if the bum is his own brother."

4. "Convince your husband the reason the food bills are so high is that his free-living companions are eating and drinking him into bankruptcy. Suppose he does find out later it really is your relatives that are busting him up? One spends more and more time with

5. "Be careful never to offend a friend that later in life your husband may want to borrow money from."

6. "Retain one or two steady, dependable, free-spending bachelors, and make them your friends. A wife often finds a good sound bachelor more helpful than children for running errands, helping with the dishes — and he'll square her out at night when her husband just wants to sit at home and listen to his fixed dogs bark."

7. "Let your husband keep at least one thoroughly objectionable friend. This will give him the sense of freedom, independence, escape and adventure every man needs in marriage."

But what about a bride who is stuck with a husband who stubbornly refuses to be weaned from his circle of disreputable pals, and who spends more and more time with

Calling Up of Bundy Remains Unsettled

WASHINGTON 15 — Whether Sen. McCarthy's all-Republican Senate investigations subcommittee will call intelligence official William P. Bundy for questioning was left up in the air today.

A conference with Allen Dulles, director of the supersecret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), where Bundy is employed, resulted in a brief temporary postponement of McCarthy's plans to question him.

McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, accused Dulles last week of blocking the subcommittee's efforts to bring Bundy before it for questioning. He called it "a blatant attempt to flout the authority of a congressional committee."

McCarthy told the Senate Bundy had contributed $400 to the defense fund of Alger Hiss, former State Department employee convicted of lying under oath when he denied he had slipped secret papers to a prewar Soviet spy ring.

After subcommittee members conferred behind closed doors with Dulles yesterday afternoon, McCarthy said Bundy "may still be called" but that a decision had been deferred pending attempts to work out arrangements for questioning witnesses without impairing security.

A statement issued by McCarthy, and approved by Dulles, also said the subcommittee will turn over to the CIA all information it has about Bundy and "immediately thereafter the agency will re-evaluate Mr. Bundy's security status under President Eisenhower's new security order."

CIA officials said Dulles took a firm stand against permitting Bundy to testify because of the sensitive nature of the intelligence agency. They said there is no present plan to subpoena Bundy, but that if he should be summoned he would be advised not to appear.

McCarthy's statement added that Mr. Dulles assured the subcommittee that there is no plan to give Mr. Bundy duties in addition to his present assignment.

McCarthy had said he understood Bundy was under consideration for assignment as liaison officer between the National Security Council and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Other developments related to the controversy-ridden subcommittee, from which all three Democratic members resigned last week, included:

1. McCarthy said the subcommittee had called off a hearing scheduled for today to which Dr. Robert L. Johnson had been summoned to explain a new policy he set last week for choosing books that may be used in the State Department's overseas libraries.

Denounced by McCarthy as "utterly ridiculous," Johnson's directive would permit the libraries to stock books by Communist authors if the books serve the ends of democracy.

McCarthy said subcommittee members had talked it over and "wondered whether much was to be gained" by calling Johnson, since he is retiring as head of the State Department's International Information Administration.

2. McCarthy said he had been assured by the FBI that former

Jamboree Now Holds 50,000 Boy Scouts

JAMBOREE CITY, Calif. 15 — From Mason City and Paducah, Ky., to Pasadena and Waterbury, Conn., and a hundred points between — the final 10,000 young Americans poured in today for the opening tomorrow of the third National Boy Scouts Jamboree.

By tonight the 3,000 acres of Jamboree City on the slopes of the Pacific will be brimming with a population of almost 50,000.

As the opening drew near, activity stepped up to a fast pace in preparation for the program of arena shows, swimming, scoutcraft displays, camping competi-

President Truman did not withhold any information he received from Canada about an international spy ring.

Truman might be asked to appear for questioning about this, but today the senator said there now would be no occasion for calling the former President.

3. Republican members of the subcommittee, it was learned, discussed the possibility of employing former Democratic Sen. Howard R. O'Connor of Maryland as executive director to replace J.B. Matthews.

In Baltimore, O'Connor said he had not been offered the job and wouldn't accept it if he were.

McCarthy last week first refused, then accepted, Matthews' resignation. Before their walkout, the Democrats on the subcommittee denounced a magazine article in which Matthews said Protestant clergymen form the largest group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States.

4. McCarthy said that, subject to taking it up with the other subcommittee members, he planned to name Karl Baarsing of Silver Spring, Md., former head of the Americanism Committee of the American Legion, as the group's research director.

McCarthy in Peace Bid to Democrats

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON 15 — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) sent a "let's-bury-the-hatchet" letter today to the three Democrats who angrily resigned last week from the Senate investigations subcommittee he heads.

"The door is open for your return," the letter said.

Saying he was writing with the approval of the three other Republican members, McCarthy declared:

"I want to assure you that if you have changes to suggest in our methods of operation, we shall be happy to sit down around the committee table to discuss your viewpoints with you and to consider your suggestions and recommendations."

Senators McClellan (D-Ark), Symington (D-Mo) and Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) quit the subcommittee after the four Republican members voted to give McCarthy sole power to hire and fire staff employees.

In revolt against what they called one-man rule, the Democrats said they could not accept the responsibility without any authority. McCarthy's letter, however, minimized the authority conferred on him. He wrote the Democrats:

"I sincerely hope you will not permit such differences of opinion among us on details of our housekeeping to cause you not to continue the service which you have been rendering the country."

The walkout over vesting McCarthy and scores of other activities. One of the busiest men is Guy P. Miller, Eugene, Ore., scout executive and producer of the arena shows, including the opener tomorrow night. Miller has a theater that will seat more than 30,000 with a stage 300 feet long and 125 feet deep. It's outdoors, on the side of a hill, and scouts and visitors will sit on the ground.

The opener will be a mammoth historical pageant designed to forge the spirit of the 1953 jamboree.

Miller staged rehearsals today for the event in which 7,000 scouts, 50 horses, covered wagons and even a couple of old-time locomotives will be on stage. Boys from Pennsylvania will depict Revolutionary War scenes at Valley Forge, where the 1950 jamboree was held.

Today 10,432 scouts were arriving from New Jersey, New York, Iowa, Kentucky, West Virginia, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Michigan, Minnesota, Arkansas, Illinois, North Dakota, South Dakota, Mississippi, Wisconsin and Indiana.

Matthews yesterday asked the House Un-American Activities Committee to hear his contentions of Red subversion in the clergy. Committee Chairman Valde (R-Ill.) told newsmen his "purely personal" opinion was that Matthews' request should be granted. But he said it was up to the full committee.

McCarthy's earlier suggestion that the investigations subcommittee question Matthews was rejected as outside that group's jurisdiction.

Harry Bridges to Face New Probe

WASHINGTON 15 — Rep. Clardy (R-Mich.) said today he has requested the House Un-American Activities Committee to call West Coast longshoremen's leader Harry Bridges for questioning about communism.

Chairman Valde (R-Ill.) told newsmen he would leave it up to the committee to decide at the committee's next meeting.

thy with complete control over subcommittee staff personnel came hard on the heels of a controversy, over a magazine article written by J. B. Matthews.

Matthews, hired by McCarthy as the subcommittee's executive staff director, wrote in the article that the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in America is composed of Protestant clergymen.

The Rio of Democrats denounced this as a shocking and unwarranted attack on the Protestant clergy. Matthews submitted his resignation, but McCarthy accepted it only after President Eisenhower joined in criticism of the article.

support. The secretary himself has criticized high supports on the grounds that they do not build markets, but invite competition of substitutes and hamper needed adjustments in farm production.

The consensus, Benson said, is that we have flexible price supports, varying the support level with the size of our supplies, primarily for the purpose of reducing surpluses. We must realize that a disadvantage comes out of a disadvantage comes out of any given time when agricultural commodity may be at a level that does not cover the cost.

On the other hand, we desire to have rigid price supports at a given level. We find the situation in the immediate effect of raising prices and increasing farmers' income and the long-run effect to stimulate production, increase consumption, attract imports, encourage competitive producers and thereby pile up surpluses.

When follow surplus disposal, foreign limitations, import quotas and the whole host of regulations that must accompany the permanent maintenance of a price above normal level.

Benson said he was not yet ready to make positive recommendations for changes in farm programs.

Nevertheless, he said the "American way" to push ahead is to encourage programs of farm development.

The secretary said, however, President Eisenhower did not want a chief executive and he did not want a secretary of agriculture to stand idly by while farmers' income was the finger of economic disaster.

One Too Many in Kremlin, Beria Loses

By DON WHITEHEAD
For James Marlow

WASHINGTON — "Three little injuns out in a canoe..."

"One fell overboard and then there were two..."

That's the way it went in the old jingle — and that's what happened in the Kremlin canoe.

The canoe just wasn't big enough for Malenkov, Molotov and Beria — so Beria went overboard with an assist from his old pals.

They pinned on his shirt tail the label "bourgeois renegade."

"Bourgeois renegade" obviously is a dreadful sort of cuss word. It's the sort of thing that would cause men down in Texas to say: "Smile when you say that, Pard-nuh."

Beria may be undergoing right now the brainwash treatment his secret police undoubtedly used to get those abject public confessions of guilt for which Russian trials are famous.

If the script is followed, Beria will confess to being "an adventurer and agent of capitalist imperialism" and acknowledge the sin of plotting to seize power and return Russia to the ways of capitalism. Then it's very likely Beria will be shot.

That leaves the two little injuns — Malenkov and Molotov — staring at each other from opposite ends of the canoe. Each of them must be aware of the dark figure of death in the shadows around them. Each must know that one death isn't enough to insure power and safety for either.

In this evil atmosphere, the Soviets are going through an internal crisis at the same time that workers are daring open rebellion in East Germany.

There are reports of restlessness in other satellite countries.

Perhaps the greatest comfort the Western world can take from this situation lies in the knowledge that hope of freedom hasn't been crushed behind the Iron Curtain — and that Russia appears to be in no position at the present time for war.

There is little likelihood of Russia springing a surprise war against the Western world, at least until the fight for power is ended in the Kremlin and the satellites are brought under iron-fisted control. Neither appears imminent.

The armed strength of the Allies in Europe can't be measured solely by the number of divisions and guns and planes. Their strength also includes the hidden support that would come from the guerrilla activity, revolts and sabotage of people waiting for a chance to throw off the Soviet shackles.

In case of war, Russian supply lines always would be vulnerable. Food, ammunition and reinforcements would be moving through hostile country. The Russians must be well aware of this threat in any war in Europe. No army is safe with enemies behind it.

The fight for power in the Kremlin thus offers a measure of relief in the cold war. How long it will continue no one can say.

But the 'little injun jingle' gives a clue on what the future may hold:

"Two little injuns foolin' with a gun."

"One shot the other, and then there was one."

Big Vote on PMA Posts Is Urged

Stressing the importance of getting a big vote for PMA farmer committee members, H. B. Gilbert, county chairman said, "Among their duties our county and community committeemen are responsible for the administration of price support programs and for the determination of acreage allotments on any crops for which allotments are in effect. Secretary Benson has already announced acreage allotments for wheat and warned that they are likely for cotton."

Hempstead County community and county committeemen must approve price support loans available for cotton, cotton seed, soybeans, peanuts, oats, and other seed. Storage facility loans available to farmers needing additional storage space for grains and other crops on their farm must also be approved by the county committees. These loans are intended to supplement regular sources of credit to increase farm grain storage capacity.

And all these farmers have a chance to vote in electing the men who supervise the programs at the farm level," the Hempstead county chairman advised.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

IN THE darkness before the dawn they rode valiantly on to Sheriff Griffin's house where they aroused him from deep slumber. Then they continued to his office and assembled there. Brownlee came quickly to the matter of the mission.

"I've come for that letter Flint Manning gave you years ago when you were his deputy. You know the one I mean, the letter to be opened if anybody ever was brought to trial for that old stage robbery," he said.

Griffin shrugged. "Sure," he said. Taking the keys, he unlocked a desk drawer and lifted a champagne bag from the litter within. "The Wells Fargo jewels," he said absently. He pawed at a heap of papers. "Here it is," he passed over a sealed letter.

Brownlee handed it to Manning. "Read it, boy."

Cole's eyes ran swiftly over the yellowed pages of the letter written by his father and dated March, 1892. When he had finished it he looked up at them and said:

"So, Doc, you were the bandit and Packrat had seen someone burying something that night near his shack. But wait, let me read to you briefly from this letter. It may help you and me to judge. In drooping voice he began: . . .

"When I, Flint Manning, law man, demanded an explanation Brownlee confessed that he had taken the money in desperation. Fighting a typhoid fever epidemic at the time, he knew the crying need of the town newspapers got hold of the story and played it up. So I had to keep Packrat in jail till young Manning got here. Only Packrat got away. Now you'll understand why I went hunting you, all excited, when that Ruxton fellow mentioned Packrat's being held prisoner. I knew Torgin was gunning for you, so I figured if must be Torgin had him. Well, the cat's out of the bag now. But I'll turn in my badge before I'll turn a key on you, Doc."

Laura shook her head. "Ma Hibbard supposed it was Flint's name you were worried about, Gramp. I did what I thought you'd want me to do. I'm proud of you for facing up to the truth."

From the open doorway, Mack Torgin said, "I heard every word of that letter. Pass it over, Manning. Pass it over, I say."

Slade Ruxton stood at Torgin's shoulder, his sardonic face showing its faint hint of laughter. He, too, held a gun. "Slade T. crew has deserted," he said. "I alone stayed with the sinking ship. But I'm no such fool as to figure there'll be any gold for me in Flint Manning's noble confession. I think I'll take something more tangible. Those Wells Fargo jewels, Sheriff. Would they be in that champagne sack on your desk?"

It was then that Manning lunged against the desk sending the lighted lamp crashing to darkness.

In the confines of this little office, the roar of a forty-five made a mighty thunder, filling the corners and beating back from the walls. Torgin shooting, Manning judged, though he couldn't be sure, not with the darkness all around. He still held Flint Manning's letter in his hand. He jammed the letter inside his shirt and shot his own gun out and sent a shot in the direction of the doorway, and then he leaped straight at the doorway. He was mindful that four others besides himself were packed in here and that one of them was Laura. He had to carry the fight outside and he did so as Torgin and Ruxton dashed to the door.

Peter Townsend, 38, a divorced man and until his transfer an equestrian in the royal household for nine years. Reportedly he and some princess are in love, and some British newspapers have speculated he's being sent out of the country because the Church of England opposes a divorced person remarrying, particularly with royalty.

Neither Townsend's name nor Margaret's was mentioned in Commons yesterday, but Hughes asked why a new air attaché was being sent to Brussels "where there already is a considerable diplomatic station."

Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd replied that the present attaché in Brussels is being replaced and "in the view of her majesty's government, it is necessary to have such an officer in that post."

Hughes then said he thought the

Big 3 Would Delay to Fall Moscow Parley

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Big Three Western foreign ministers wind up their Washington conference today with indications of agreement that any high-level meeting with Russia should be delayed at least until next fall.

A high British official said his government was willing to wait until after the German elections Sept. 6 to avoid possible embarrassment to West Germany's government.

Diplomatic informants reported that Acting British Foreign Secretary Lord Salisbury had presented this position to Secretary of State Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and that the three were in substantial accord.

Before this afternoon's final Big Three session, Dulles and Salisbury planned to meet and discuss Britain's dispute with Egypt over continued presence of British forces in the Suez Canal area.

A high British official, who may not be named, said Britain is determined that an agreement with Egypt must cover two major requirements: (1) Permission for British forces to return to Suez in event of war and (2) arrangements for adequate maintenance of the extensive military installations at the base.

Dulles, Bidault and Salisbury held their next to last session late yesterday under unusual secrecy restrictions. They limited discussion to a report that they went over policy papers dealing down understandings reached in their discussions here. The British and French ministers, it was reported, then referred the documents to London and Paris for final consideration in advance of today's meeting.

Most of the discussion of the conference has been concerned with the closely related problems of Western policy toward Germany and Western estimates of the behavior and policy of the Soviet Union.

Any moves toward achievement of German unification must involve Russia since it is one of the occupying powers along with the three Western nations. A determined ef-

He's Curious Over Romance of Princess

LONDON, Eng. — A Labor party member served notice today he'll try again to get the House of Commons talking about Princess Margaret's reported romance with a divorced air hero. The House speaker politely but firmly shut him up yesterday.

Laborite Emrys Hughes said he would file another question in the House tomorrow addressed to the air minister. Officially he wants to know why the ministry is assigning a new air attaché to Britain's embassy in Brussels.

The new attaché is Group Capt.
